

OPPOSE AMENDMENT 83

The so-called “Right to Hunt & Fish” is driven by out-of-state special interests looking to impact Colorado’s constitution to limit our state agencies and the will of our voters. It will have negative impacts on our wildlife management, tie up our tax dollars and legal system with lawsuits around its vague language, and bring back cruel hunting practices that have been banned by Colorado’s voters for decades.

This unnecessary change will limit Coloradans' voice in our own wildlife's future, permanently. Protect our constitution and defend Colorado's wildlife from these out-of-state special interests.

Don't be fooled. Get the facts.

What Amendment 83 Would Do

Permanently alters our state constitution to “protect” the right to hunt and fish, activities that are already legal and not under threat in Colorado.

Makes hunting and fishing the “primary and preferred means” of wildlife management, establishing a constitutional preference for these methods.

Uses vague language, including “traditional methods” and “sound scientific wildlife conservation and management” leaving their meaning open to long, expensive court battles on the taxpayers’ dime.

Prioritizes one public lands user over all others, impacting the availability of our public lands for each of us, from hikers, to mountain bikers, to wildlife watchers.

Will impact future conservation decisions, including how Colorado responds to changing science, habitat needs, biodiversity, disease, and other emerging wildlife challenges.
